Making vehicles special

Specialists with the ability to produce the unique. And do so.

Each vehicle produced by WAS is special to us and to you. With a team of 350 experts in their field, WAS have designed, manufactured and delivered almost 20,000 bespoke vehicles since 1987. With a group combined knowledge to understand the demands and requirements of our customers. Paying exact attention to detail throughout the whole build process from pre build design and calculations, to delivery of the final product. That is how WAS create.

Simple base vehicles, converted into unique solutions.

WAS are able to convert vehicles from all manufacturers. Base vehicles arrive at WAS with standard equipment, standard technology. For our box-body solutions the vehicles arrive as a simple chassis cab – that's it. When they leave us our customers receive a unique solution – an innovative conversion fitted with latest technology and bespoke design. These are the ingredients of vehicles made by WAS – individual conversions by Wietmarscher craftsmen. Solutions for fire departments, health organisations, ambulance and emergency services, disaster relief and further public services.

The special is often in the detail.

It is not only the workmanship and technical expertise that makes WAS vehicles stand out from the crowd. There are numerous details that make it special. 167 to be precise. From unique body design features like 270° opening rear doors to special saloon filtration systems for the transportation of highly infectious patients – if there is a problem, WAS have a solution. Which other manufacturer offers surface mounted windows to reduce drag and noise as low as possible? These are only 3 of 167 specialities that classify WAS as special.

Once WAS – always WAS.

Statistics reveal that many customers have placed repeat orders to convert and build vehicles for them. In many cases it started with one special solution, which was designed developed and manufactured in partnership with the end user. In many instances, the one special solution turned into a multi quantity version with considerable quantities manufactured. By that principal, a combined group total of 19,400 vehicles have been manufactured and delivered since 1987. They are in daily operational use with police, ambulance, safety, fire, customs and internal security authorities throughout the world. We are proud of our long term relationships and commitment to our customers.

Our aim is to keep you on the road.

Most of our vehicles are responsible for the safety and rescue of human life. Therefore it is of special importance that the vehicles are operational 24/7 – 365. To ensure and support this, WAS provide a comprehensive aftersales support, service and training packages – all tailored to suit your needs. WAS can maintain your complete conversion. Complex medical components and units require regular maintenance to operate without failure. Mechanical units should be checked on a regular basis for functionality. If necessary, original spare parts are used to repair and ensure longevity. This also makes WAS special.
